

Future Science Leaders is a program for middle school students in 6th-8th to explore science, make new friends, participate in real scientific research, and share your passion. We do this by working on educational programming, exhibits, and digital media projects

This year FSL members will...

- deliver hands-on activities to museum guests
- engage with the Sciencenter's live animal collection (snakes, geckos, horseshoe crabs, etc.)
- design, build, and test exhibit prototypes
- develop how-to, stop motion animation, and other videos
- utilize coding to answer scientific questions
- participate in a citizen science project
- collaborate with researchers from Cornell
- earn volunteer or community service/career exploration hours

FSL members attend meetings and special events when they are interested and available. Regular meetings are Saturdays from 12:30 - 3pm. See program calendar for more information.

This program is free to all current Sciencenter members.
